

Tencent Holdings Case Study

Protecting your world

Project Overview

Tencent Holdings is one of the world's largest internet service providers headquartered in Shenzhen, China, renowned for quality innovation and internet service capabilities, with revenues of over US $36B in 2017.

Tencent needed to improve the level of detection and prevention capability in its facilities, to bring it in line with a company at the forefront of technology, and with large volumes of data and sensitive information.

Customer Needs

- Chubb previously upgraded the closed-circuit television (CCTV) systems for one of Tencent's iconic facilities, Tencent Building, in Shanghai in 2016.
- Tencent then asked Chubb to bring its security expertise and capability to two more key facilities – one in Shanghai and the other one in Chongqing.
- Chubb expertise was required to advise on the upgrade of the existing security capability to improve the quality of both the images and video.
- Tencent required upgraded CCTV systems to be capable of integrating with future requirements such as data collation systems, security information systems and other additional features such as video tracking, remote monitoring and video content analytics.

Solution and Benefits

Chubb has brought its superior quality, capability and security expertise as well as project management skills to service Tegyun Building in Shanghai and Tencent Building in Chongqing, following the initial upgrades in 2016 to the Tencent Building in Shanghai.

The scope of work included the upgrade of 350 IP cameras which provide a lasting security solution.

Tencent has been satisfied with the quality of Chubb's solutions for providing clear CCTV videos and images. Chubb's advanced solutions were far superior to those used in the building previously, and they continue to assess the needs of a large but growing technology business.

Project Summary

As one of the world's largest tech companies, Tencent is quite demanding of their security partners to ensure the safekeeping of confidential company and customer information. Tencent is pleased that Chubb helped them to further enhance their security level through providing successful upgrades to their CCTV systems.
